Welcome to Church today!

Pastor James is our speaker this morning

“Last week we learned about having the right kind of fear. That is, not fearing people, things, and situations, but having a healthy kind of fear, the fear of God.

This week, Jesus is going to lay out the implications of having a fear of God, and we'll ask, 'What does the fear of God look like in everyday life? How does it affect the way we think and behave?' These won't be easy to stomach, but it's good for us - these are Jesus' words and we need to listen and respond.”

This evening we will be watching a DVD by Alistair Begg.

“Although listed among the fruit of the Spirit, ‘gentleness’ is an aspect of Christian character that is often neglected. Alistair Begg explains that Biblical gentleness is not a natural personality trait but strength under control, pictured perfectly in God’s disposition toward His children and the humility of Jesus Christ. God forms gentleness in us through difficult circumstances as we learn to submit to His Word and grow in the practice of living with consideration for those around us.”
